Comparing Co-browsing and Screen Sharing

With Co-browsing, every sessions starts and end where you want it to be:

- Make use of HTML sharing protocol and can be integrated in web applications
- Begin directly in your customers' browser
- Share your web browser only
- Surf the internet together, keeping you in sync with the person you are co-browsing with

In Screen Sharing, every sessions begins in a different platform/tool,

- Make use of Remote Framebuffer Protocol
- Commonly use by Skype, Zoom etc..
- Require to download and/or install software
- Look at what is on the screen and send over the network to your participants
- Less control of the brand experience you create
